

It's OK to Complain

A complaint is when you tell someone you are not happy with something about your service. It is OK to complain.

Anyone can make a complaint. This includes you, your family, friends, advocates, neighbours or anyone else who is unhappy with the support you get.

You can make a complaint about anything that makes you unhappy or scared.

You can make a complaint about your service provider, support worker or others not listening to you or not being fair.

To make a complaint you can

- Talk to your support worker or team leader.
- Fill in a Compliments, Complaints and Feedback Form.
- Go to www.connectability.org.au to give feedback.
- Call Connectability on 4962 1000.
- Contact an advocacy service to get support.
- Phone the NDIS Quality and Safeguard Commission on 1800 035 544.
